Turtles are amazing! They pre-date dinosaurs and have not had to heavily evolve because they have the most magnificent piece of Mother's Natures architecture, the shell. In North America we have one of the largest varieties of chelonians of any continent. New Jersey native species are predominantly fresh-water terrapins and terrestrial turtles. According to the New Jersey Division Fish and Wildlife, there are 13 native species, which include box & water turtles (Emydidae), mud and musk turtles (Kinosternidae), one snapping turtle species (Chelydridae), one softshell turtle (Trionychidae) and a critically endangered species, North America's smallest species, and your state turtle, the bog turtle (Glyptemys mühlenbergii). In this lecture, we will review how to identify native NJ species and how to provide temporary, cost-effective housing pending transport to a licensed turtle wildlife rehabilitator. A hand-out will be provided, which will empower you to be a part of the recovery process for injured turtles.
